ASSOCIATE/ MEDICAL DIRECTOR – MEDICAL AESTHETICS

Allergan is a global, technology-driven multi-speciality health care company pursuing therapeutic advances to help patients live life to their fullest potential. The company's flagship franchises are in eye care, neurosciences, medical dermatology and urologics. This portfolio offers specialty physicians and their patients a wide range of treatments to help preserve and protect sight, reduce physical disability and enhance quality of life.

As a world leader in medical aesthetics Allergan has a very successful portfolio of products in botulinum toxin and dermal fillers, and breast aesthetics, as well as a leading product portfolio in obesity intervention that offers minimally invasive devices to help patients achieve sustained weight loss and reduce health risks associated with obesity.

We are seeking an Associate/ Medical Director to support this area of business across Europe, Middle East and Africa. In this high profile international role you will be Allergan's medical and scientific authority to both internal and external customers. You will be responsible for the strategy to develop and deliver medical and scientific data to support the Allergan Medical Business. This role will demand a high level of cross functional working, ensuring all activities are executed within the appropriate regulatory and legal context for both Pharmaceutical and Medical Device research and promotion.

You will be medically qualified with EU registration and be able to demonstrate a successful track record in medical affairs within the pharmaceutical industry. Ideally you will have a clinical background in Plastic Surgery, Dermatology or General Practice with a special interest in aesthetics. You will be able to demonstrate an ability to provide proactive input at strategic level, engage a broad range of stakeholders and then deliver on the strategy.
